(By The Associated Press.)
NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sept. 14.—The question of where Rev. Edward R. Hall, Episcopal rector and his church leader, Mrs. James Mills, were slain, shared equally the interest with that by whom they were slain, as authorities of two counties today began the third day of their inquiry into the mysterious double murder. Detectives are not convinced that the bodies of Mrs. Mills and their son, John, were thrown from the top of the tree near the apple tree. Mills and Mrs. Hall are expected to be questioned again today.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sept. 12. Mrs. Edward W. Hall, whose husband is a nurse here at Camp and who is a member of the church of St. John the Evangelist, and Mrs. James Mills, wife of the sexton of the church, were found dead from bullet wounds under an apple tree in a rusted box at Camp and on Saturday morning, told detectives today she was the woman in the police coat who was seen entering the Hall home at 2 o'clock Friday morning, soon after the police allege the double shooting occurred.

She told those detectives said that becoming worried over the failure of her husband to return home she had gone to his church to see if he had been there. She said she has never been accompanied by Wm. Solvamy, her brother.

GIVES BIRTHDAY PARTY

Little Edith Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Harris, gave a delightful party at her home on Franklin street on Friday afternoon in honor of her seventh birthday. Quite a number of her friends of about the same age were present for the occasion and all had a delightful time. The party lasted from 4 until 6 o'clock during which time various kinds of games were played and refreshments were served.

Pink and yellow were the color schemes carried out in the dining room and hall, which were very prettily decorated. The prize for pinning the tail on the donkey was won by Elizabeth Foster. For "finding the most peanuts" Shirley Harris won the prize. After refreshments consisting of ice cream and cake were served, the entire party were taken out for a ride. Those who attended included: Evelyn Davis, Elizabeth Foster, Lois Gifty, Sarah Foster, Virginia Law, Katherine and Elmer Doff, Helen Harris, Elizabeth Black, Edith Culpepper, Virginia Culpepper, Doris McCormick, Shirley Harris, Ray Luther, Evangeline McDowell, Eva Harris, Hazel Harris, Willard Hammock, Winifred Davis, Lorin Abernathy, Ollie Moore, and James Fogler.

Race Riot In New York City

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Bricks, razor knives, clubs and fists were the weapons that sent six victims to hospitals and a score of others, less seriously injured, to physicians for treatment early today as the result of a race riot between whites and blacks that grew out of the invasion by negroes of a neighborhood tenanted by white families. Police reserves quelled the battle.

Three of the six seriously injured are under arrest and under police guard in hospitals. They are white men, all charged with felonious assault. They are suffering from razor cuts, stab wounds and broken heads. A negro and two negroes also are in hospitals, but have not been arrested.

The battle occurred in West Fifty-Ninth street, in the upper West Side, where the police said, trouble has been brewing for some time following invasion of the neighborhood by the blacks. Early today a party of white men is alleged to have invaded a hall where a celebration of negroes was in progress. They were ejected, badly beaten, the police say, and later they dragged two negroes and then by main force from a taxi-cab and set upon them.

This is said to have precipitated a general battle, whites and blacks flowing to the melee from all directions. Razors, knives and clubs augmented the fists, while adherents of both factions stood on nearby tenement roofs and hurled into the swirling mass, bricks torn from chimneys. Riot calls brought several squadrons of police, who rushed the two factions into an enforced peace.

Extra police tonight are patrolling the neighborhood to prevent a resumption of hostilities.

LEVISTER-COBB

A marriage of interest to their many friends took place Saturday night at 8 o'clock at the home of G. C. Taylor, 812 Stokes St., when Miss Cleo Wilson Cobb, of Reidsville, N. C., became the bride of Allen Patterson Levister of this city. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. H. W. Connelly, pastor of the Second Baptist church. Those witnessing the ceremony were George Levister and Miss Enid Levister, brother and sister of the groom; C. J. Spencer, Miss Lily Smith, Mrs. G. C. Taylor and Miss Irene Marko. The couple will make Danville their home.

MCADOO ANGLING

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo., Sept. 17.—William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, has taken Yellowstone Park fishermen off their feet. Yesterday he reported catching a rainbow trout weighing seventeen pounds. Mr. McAdoo, who arrived here after a trip down the Snake River in Idaho, said that he hooked the record trout while fishing from a raft on which the river trip was made. He departed last night for California.

Miss Blanche Farmer is visiting friends and relatives at Crewe, Va.

SECRETS? GIRL DIPLOMAT KEEPS THEM IN THE FAMILY

MISS NADEJDA STANCIOFF

LONDON, Sept. 18.—This introduces the newest feminine phenomenon—a woman diplomat.

Yes, a diplomat. And the modern definition of "diplomat" is "one who knows how to keep a secret."

Miss Nadejda Stancioff knows how. She proved it during the last 11 years as secretary to her father as Bulgarian secretary or minister at Bucharest, Vienna, Petrograd, Paris and Rome, and lately as minister to London.

This 27-year-old girl is going to America. She has just been appointed first secretary of the Bulgarian legation at Washington.

Maybe these words of hers explain the why of it: "I am proud that a woman has been chosen for this Washington post, because in Bulgaria there is very close cooperation between the men and women. A man is not ashamed to help the woman do the house work, and a woman helps the man in his business and political career."

Miss Stancioff is a tall, good-looking, graceful girl with dark eyes and pale face. She speaks English fluently. Besides her native Bulgarian, she also speaks German, French, Italian and Russian.

"America and Great Britain have women in Congress and Parliament," she said. "So why not a woman in the diplomatic corps?"

"I love the work, the service to my country. And what advancement I have gained I owe to my training with my father and friendship with the Bulgarian premier."

"Miss Stancioff has served as secretary to the premier and was his interpreter during the third assembly of the League of Nations at Geneva."

"Being with my father in diplomatic work has been a good thing," she said, "because we have kept diplomatic secrets in the family. I feel like a veteran now and I am looking forward eagerly to my work in Washington."

D. M. I. Will Open On Wednesday

Danville Military Institute will hold its opening exercises for the 1922-23 session Wednesday morning at 10 a. m. The day will mark the beginning of the first session under the new management with Col. William M. Kemper as superintendent.

Dr. J. N. Latham, pastor of Main Street Methodist Church, will be the speaker of the day. There also will probably be other speakers. The musical program includes a number of songs by Miss Moore, of R. M. I. The rest of the exercises will be of an informal nature and will include a talk by Col. Kemper, who will outline plans and policies of the school for the coming year.

It is expected that a large crowd will attend the open exercises. D. M. I. is held in warm esteem by Danville people, many of whom have received instruction in its halls.

Students will begin to arrive Tuesday and will continue to come in during the week. Local students are urged to report Wednesday in order to obviate any delay in registration. After the exercises Wednesday, the classification of students will begin. All classes will assemble Thursday when assignments will be given and on Friday regular class work will begin.

Col. Kemper stated last night that prospects were excellent for a most successful year. A large enrollment is expected, not only locally, but from many states.

FUNERAL OF MISS LIZZIE S. WOOD

The funeral of Miss Lizzie S. Wood will be conducted at her home, 871 Green street, at 3:30 Saturday afternoon.

While Miss Wood had been ill for several months, the end came suddenly yesterday evening.

Miss Wood was born in Danville, February 5, 1868, where she spent practically her entire life—a life of outstanding usefulness. She was a member of the First Baptist Church, and her devotion to every phase of church work was untiring. Miss Wood taught for many years in both public and private schools, where her love of character had a profound influence on her pupils, many of whom ascribe to her the kindness of their ambition for higher things. Through a long and painful illness, her resignation and unwavering Christian faith proved to those associated with her that, "Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death I will fear no evil; for thou art with me, thy rod and thy staff they comfort me."

Miss Wood is survived by her sister, Mrs. F. W. Shuff, two nephews, Earle Shuff and Guy Shuff, and two nieces, Mrs. Strathmore Owens and Mrs. W. Otis Lee, all of this city. She is also survived by a brother, W. J. Wood, of Roanoke, and nephews, J. Wood Shuff, of Roanoke, and Chas. W. Shuff, of Greensville, N. C., and niece, Mrs. F. C. Mookler, of Richmond, who are here to attend the funeral.

GREAT SMOKY MOUNTAIN GAME CLUB FORMED

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Sept. 16.—With the receipt of a charter today for the Great Smoky Mountain Club, it became known that Asheville men had purchased 35 square miles of land in the mountains of Haywood county, N. ## FIREWORKS FOR DANVILLE FAIR

"OH-H-HI! Isn't it pretty?" While she heard a regular chorus of such exclamations and remarks at the fireworks program of the Danville Fair? A big fireworks bill is to be presented at the fair this year at Danville, Oct. 19 to 21.

"Fireworks are enjoyed to such an extent by fair crowds that they have become one of the most popular features," said Secretary H. B. Watkins, today. "Under the terms of our contract we will get all the latest combinations of colors, and the most unusual pyrotechnic effects. There will be giant skyrocket, Roman candles, bursting star shells, and a hundred new features, worked out by fireworks specialists."

So many kinds of fireworks have been published that a special crew of experts direct from the factory are to be sent to "fire" the show. Special "set pieces" reproducing animals and other objects in lines of fire on huge canvas of wire, will be made each day and fired at night.

The entertainment program this year not only surpasses any previous one but the educational exhibits promise to be larger, too. Fair officials assert that records will be broken in nearly every department. There will be a large exhibit of stock.

A premium book telling all about the premiums to be awarded for all kinds of educational exhibits will be mailed to anyone who writes to Secretary Watkins.

Special preparations are being made for the grand opening of the new grounds and stands.

AMUSEMENTS

AL. G. FIELD MINSTRELS

At The Majestic Friday, Sept. 22nd, Matinee and Night.

Theatre-goers of Danville are to have the pleasure again of witnessing their favorite form of stage entertainment next Friday, Sept. 22nd when the Al. G. Field Minstrels make its annual visit to the city. The engagement is for Matinee and Night at the Majestic Theatre.

This is the Field organization's thirty-sixth season and is heralded as the best of its long and successful career. The company again includes the old favorites of song and dance and humor, headed by Bert Swor, its premier comedian, with Nick Hufford, Jim Swor, John Healy, Jack Richards, Billy Church, John Cart, Bots, and Lennie Berry, Edwin Jones, Ola Ellwood, Walter Dorsey, Carl Cameron's Saxophone Five, and a half hundred well known minstrel artists.

Maurice Sharr, famous and gifted violinist and orchestra conductor, has the important post of musical director this year, while F. M. Pierce, noted circus and minstrel bandman, is in charge of the fine Field Minstrel Band.

Manager Conrad is particularly proud of the personnel of his show this year, containing as it does, the best talent in the field of minstrelsy today.

Prices, matinee 50 cents to $1.50, night 50 cents to $2.00. Seat sale opens Tuesday 10 a. m.

VIRGINIA STATE FAIR

A "Million dollar Cattle Show" is to feature the exhibits of the seventeenth annual Virginia State Fair at Richmond, October 2nd to 10th. The association offers $25,000.00 in cash premiums for live stock. The policy of liberal prize offers has developed the Virginia Fair into a position of leadership among eastern fairs in the livestock department. The best blue ribbon stock the country affords in horses, beef and dairy cattle, sheep and swine is looked to show at Richmond this season. A mammoth new brick and steel cattle barn and new sheep and swine sheds are ready to house the four-footed aristocrats and afford their admirers every opportunity for looking them over.

McCormic Silent As To Nomination

WINCHESTER, Va., Sept. 16.—H. B. McCormac was noncommittal today when he was informed that Richmond Republican leaders were predicting his nomination for the United States Senate at the State convention at Roanoke Monday, after States Senator A. F. Loholm, of Smythe County, had declined to allow his name to go before the convention.

McCormac stated today that he had not been consulted by State party leaders, and did not know what his attitude would be, even if asked to accept the nomination to oppose Senator Claude A. Swanson for re-election.

The movement to nominate McCormac is understood to be designed to bring out a larger Republican vote in the seventh congressional district, in which John Paul, of Harrisonburg, is opposing T. W. Harrison, Democrat, for re-election. Harrison was elected two years ago by 500 majority, but Paul successfully contested the election before a House investigating committee. The House, however, has never voted on the unseating of Harrison.

McCormac is president of the Chamber of Commerce, and is extensively interested in many financial and industrial enterprises here.

Find Shark's Tooth 500 Feet In Earth

KINSTON, N. C., Sept. 17.—Relics of the "lost sea" that once existed where Eastern Carolina now basks in the sun are being found at Ellersport, three miles from here. The Ellersport municipality is establishing its auxiliary water plant. A well-preserved shark's tooth has come into the possession of William Olsen, engineer in charge. The tooth of these fish have previously been found in artesian well shafts hereabouts. Olsen's specimen came from a depth of more than 500 feet, proving that nature has piled up a lot of dirt over this former part of the ocean since starting its great reclamation project.

BETTER THAN SODA FOR INDIGESTION

Indigestion and its attendant ills, such as dyspepsia, heart-burn, sour stomach, griping pains, dysentery, diarrhoea, colic, cholera morbus, chronic constipation, gas, etc., and even sick, nervous headaches are now directly traceable to disorders in the digestive organs. The food eaten before it is fully digested, thus putting into solution toxic poisons that are absorbed into the system, irritate the intestine and setting up inflammation. To avoid this, you simply have to prevent fermentation by using Anti-Ferment. Anti-Ferment neutralizes the acid condition of the stomach, cleanses and sweetens the bowels, softens and heals the inflamed intestine and increases the flow of gastric juices, giving quick and certain relief. Get a bottle of Anti-Ferment from your druggist with a guarantee of satisfactory results or money returned. It will improve your appetite, give you restful sleep and make you feel better than you ever felt in your life.—adv.

Overcome that itching rash and enjoy skin health

Decide now to rid yourself of eczema, ringworm or any other equally tormenting skin trouble from which you are suffering, by using Resinol Ointment, because—

It stops itching almost instantly—

Keeps inflammation at once, and promotes the return of skin health—

Contains nothing that could injure or irritate the tenderest skin—

Is a doctor's formula and has been prescribed by physicians for nearly 50 years—

Can be obtained from your nearest drug store at small cost—one jar good for many treatments.

Resinol Soap is an invaluable aid to Resinol Ointment, and its daily use for the toilet and bath is sufficient to keep most complexion clear, fresh and glowing. The ideal soap for the family.

RESINOL

Syrup Pepsin Loved By Hosts of Babies

Half a teaspoonful will make a fretful youngster happy and playful

THE mother has her choice of many remedies for her baby's minor ills, but she should be careful which remedy she selects lest she do the child harm. What might be safe for herself may do injury to an infant. You will find that if the little one cries and doesn't want to play that its bowels are constipated. First look carefully to the diet and give the child one-half teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. You will then see results in a few hours. You will not have to force it on babies or children; they actually ask for it, it is so pleasant-tasting and free from gripping.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a compound of Egyptian senna and pepsin with agreeable aromatics. The ingredients are stated on the package. It is a mild, gentle vegetable laxative that every one finds effective and pleasant. It is better for you and yours than purgatives, coal-tar drugs, or salt waters and powders, which may concentrate the blood and dry up the skin; or mercurial calomel, which may salivate and loosen the teeth.

Use a safe laxative like Syrup Pepsin, and especially for the children, for invalids, growing girls, nursing mothers, elderly people, and persons recently operated upon who need bowel action with the least strain. Mrs. Lillian Breunton of Woodruff, S. C., always gives her children Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and Mrs. A. E. Blodgett, of Muskogee, Mich., will not have any other laxative in her home. Your druggist will supply you, and it only costs a cent a dose. Try it in constipation, colic, biliousness, flatulency, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds.

TANLAC DEMAND IS GREATER THAN EVER IN HISTORY

Modern Pinats Have Increased Capacity of 62,240 Bottles A Day But Makers Are Still Behind Orders Medicine Publicly Endorsed By Best People Everywhere.

During the first seven months of this year 3,584,000 bottles of Tanlac have been sold and a new world record for a proprietary medicine established.

More than 20,000,000 bottles have been sold during the eight years Tanlac has been before the public, and to say that it is the largest selling medicine of its kind does not begin to tell the story. No other preparation has ever approached the demand enjoyed by Tanlac, and it is expected that the sales this year alone will be more than ten million bottles.

Working diligently at full capacity the three modern laboratories at Dayton, Ohio, Walkersville, Canada, and Mexico City still behind with orders in spite of the fact that the combined output has been increased to 62,240 bottles a day. While the laboratories are striving for quantity production this endeavor is still secondary to the determination to make no sacrifice whatever that will endanger the high quality of the medicine.

Tanlac's wide-spread and ever increasing popularity is the strongest possible proof of its unquestioned merit. No product, no matter how extensively advertised, could continue to establish world records for sales year after year if it did not produce actual and positive results.

Tanlac is composed of the most beneficial roots, herbs and barks known to medical science. The formula is ethical and conforms to all pure food and drug laws, and although Tanlac's superiority is abundantly supported by leading authorities it is the people themselves who have made Tanlac what it is. Millions upon millions have used it and have told other millions what it has done, while thousands of the best people in every community have given public statements of the great benefits they have received by taking it.

Tanlac is sold by all good druggists.

Danville Wins In Final Game And Is Ahead Of Raleigh

In a game poorly played by the Danville team, and with ineffective pitching on both sides, but in the presence of the largest crowd of spectators which has witnessed a game this season, the Tobaccoconists Saturday defeated Raleigh 16 to 11, thus landing in fifth place, and showing the men from the Carolina capital into the cellar in the Piedmont League final.

It was a snafu from start to finish, but with both teams playing hard, earnest and honest baseball, it was a contest throughout. The visitors never quit, and in the eighth inning, they pounded in four runs with five hits, which included a home run and two doubles. In all, they garnered thirteen bingles for a total of 23 bases—two home runs, four two-base hits and seven singles.

The Raleighites scored three runs in the opening inning on as many bingles and a trio of errors, and it seemed assured that the Danville outfit was destined for the cellar. Fortunately, however, when they were reduced scoreless in the opener and again in the second inning, quick double plays retiring them in both cases. Meanwhile the visitors had added two more runs in the second, making their lead 3 to 2 to Danville's nothing.

Just then the turn in the tide came, the breaks which had been going against Danville, along with their own misuses, suddenly shifted so that Raleigh was the sufferer. Manager Abbott opened the third with a single to right, but Bond grounded out to first. Baker beat out a slow twistler between first and second, and the crowd began to awaken from its apathy and grow interested, expecting that the Danville team would attack by singling sharply to right, scoring Abbott Johnson was returned on a grounder to third, but Pitcher Easter wisely walked Trexler, the batting leader of the team. Here, however, proved quite as dangerous, however, for he slammed one to left-center for two sacks, driving in Baker and Mack. Shaner cracked a safety to the center pasture, and Trexler and Murphy scored. That was all for the inning, but it tied the score in a knot, which Danville promptly untied in the fourth by scoring three times. Abbott again led off, but fled to left. Bond drove a ducated with a hit to right. This fusillade sent Mr. Easter to the dug-out, and amiable Bill Allen took up the burden of trying to stop the swarming Danville bunch. He retired Murphy, but Johnson drove the cushion with a drive to the school yard. Trexler smashed one to the left-field fence, and Johnson counted.

Meanwhile Pitcher Bond, Danville's puny little bowler, and turned the Danville back in the third, fourth, fifth and sixth. Danville, however, seemed intent on making assurance doubly sure, and did when Pitcher Bond opened the sixth with a circuit clout over the garden wall. Evidently this disturbed Allen's equanimity and equilibrium, for he passed Baker, McMillan did the usual thing, laid it down, advancing Baker and Raleigh's second baseman, and Trexler was third fighting, however, and with effective pitching might have overcome a 5-run lead and won. In the seventh, Allen blew up, and great was the explosion. Shaner began the eighth clout for the fourth time, but Harris forced him at second with a rap to Johnston at third. Abbott's single to right advanced Harris, and Bond drew a pass. With the corners crowded, Baker was also walked, forcing McMillan. McMillan again fled to Floyd, but Danville's Johnson followed with his third consecutive hit, scoring Abbott and Bond. Trexler then succeeded in what he almost achieved in the fourth inning, hammering the ball over the fence in left. Nine men had batted in the inning and all but three had scored. With the score 16 to 7 against them, Raleigh still fought back gamely. If, hopefully, they got on in opening the eighth on Baker's only miscue. Whitley then followed the Trexler example and dropped the ball over in some North Main street's garden. Pitcher Bond, who was perceptibly weakening, braved and fanned Allen for the first out. Winston, however, had another swat in his system besides the two he had delivered, and so he proceeded to pound the ball to extreme right for two bases. Manager Duke Duncan jammed a single directly to center. R. Allen grounded to Johnson, who nipped Winston at the scoring station. Then Floyd uncorked his second successive two-bagger, registering Duncan and Allen. Johnson beat out a single toward third, but Shannon whiffed. Whereupon Umpire Gaffney ended the 1922 season by calling the game on account of darkness.

With eighteen hits good for 27 total bases and four bases on balls, the Danville swatsmen scored sixteen runs. Trexler had three hits in four times at bat, and so did Shaner, but Trexler's trio included a homer. Johnson got three hits in five times up, good for five bases, while Bond and Baker each got two in three times at bat. Shaner hit 'em hard, his terrific liner to left in the fifth, striking the fence near the top. Manager Abbott fattened his average by hitting at 500 (a. t. There was no sensational or really noteworthy fielding, and, in fact, Danville opened the game with a very forced exhibition. It was the type of game a crowd likes, however, and it certainly was a throng to inspire Danville to their best efforts. Such a contest is rarely seen in a Piedmont League game.

VIRGINIA ELEVENS PLAY INTERSECTIONAL CONTESTS

Aside from the annual classics between gridiron teams of the Virginia and North Carolina colleges, the clashes with teams in other sections of the country will furnish one of the features of the season this year. For some of the teams it will mark a new departure. Take, for instance, Richmond University and William and Mary College. The elevens from these two institutions will journey north on September 30, the former to play Lafayette and the latter to meet Penn State.

It has been a rare occasion that either of these two elevens have scheduled games so far from home. The recent rise in the calibre of teams turned out is mainly responsible and future contests of such character will probably be the rule rather than the exception.

Virginia and North Carolina will be the next teams to go north. Both will play the same elevens that defeated them last year. The Orange and Black tackles Princeton with feeling of making a better showing than in 1921. The Tar Heels meet Yale. Another important intersectional contest which takes place early is that between Virginia Tech and Cornell College in Richmond, on October 14.

Washington and Lee will go to Charleston to play West Virginia on October 21. Virginia plays Georgia at Athens on Armistice Day and the Generals take another trip west on the same day, this time meeting Centre College. November 18, Virginia and West Virginia clash on the latter's field.

The calibre of teams that will be turned out by the various colleges in Virginia and North Carolina can not be accurately forecasted. Some of them will no doubt make football history this season, while others will prove disappointments. Following is some of the early season dope:

Virginia—Over half of last year's letter men will be back, with Captain Hall, Blockford, Davis and Ward as a nucleus for the line. Burge, Oppelman, Foster and Maples are expected to show up for the backfield, while Clark, Mays and Stevenson, linemen, are on the doubtful list. Arnold and Little of the 1921 freshmen team are considered the most promising of the new backfield material.

Virginia Tech—Captain Hardwick, Moore and Sherertz are three regulars who have returned to college and who will form a splendid nucleus around which to build a team. Good new material is promised as well as number of other regulars of last year. Hesse, who did most of the punting in 1921, will not return.

Washington and Lee—Coach Jimmie DeHart is expected to have a big squad of huskies from which to pick the Generals' team. Captain Maddox is among the old men who will be seen in action again this year.

Virginia Military Institute—The cadets have only four regulars back this year, Captain Harrison and Hunt in the line and Costello and Farley as backs. The scrubs will furnish some good men, as well as the freshmen class.

Hampden-Sidney—Nine letter men are on hand for the 1922 season. In addition the scrubs will furnish some likely candidates for the new material apper to be good. The Tigers are anticipating a fine team this fall.

William and Mary—With Bill Ingram as the Indians' new mentor, alumni of the institution are looking forward to a good football season. A large number of regulars will be on hand.

Roanoke College—Twelve letter men have reports for practice. New high school players are expected to add strength to the eleven.

Randolph-Macon—The selection of Rice Warren as coach has given an impetus to football at this college and a much better team is expected this year. Candidates will arrive this week.

Richmond University—Twelve regulars are already out for practice and three more will report in a day or two. The squad is expected to be considerably augmented from the freshman class.

North Carolina—All but two of 1921's first string players are returning and prospects are bright for a very successful year.

Carolina State—Coach Hartwell will have to build almost an entire new team this fall. Ten letter men are lost to the team.

CAPITAL RIFLE CLUB IN LEAD

CAMP PERRY, Philo, Sept. 16.—The National Capital Rifle Club, Washington, D. C., took first honors in the civilian inter-club championship in the annual national rifle association's tournament today. The club had a total of 364 out of a possible 400 over the 200 and 600 slow fire ranges, with ten shots for record on each range.

Adjutant General Louis A. Tombs of Louisiana, was the winner of the adjutant general's match with a score of 89 out of a possible 100 over the 200 and 600 slow fire ranges.

Winners in a number of contests shot late this afternoon including the president's match, may not be known before tomorrow on account of the large number of score cards to be checked.

JAPANESE ARE MAKING PEARLS

PARIS, Sept. 16.—(United Press.)—The Academy of Science has found that there is absolutely no difference between the cultured pearl as developed in Japan by Mikimoto and the natural oyster pearl.

If perfect culture pearls can be produced in any number, this discovery is likely to revolutionize the pearl market and to lower the value of pearls.

M. Jouba presented to the Academy of Science a report drawn up by M. Roustan, professor at the Faculty of Science of Bordeaux, in which Roustan declares that after dissecting and making a careful analysis of the cultured pearl, he found the inner substance to be similar in every respect to that of a natural pearl.

It is evident, says the report, that the inventor of the cultured pearl has found a means of infecting oysters with the disease which produces pearls.

GEORGES CLEMENCEAU TO TAKE TRIP TO AMERICA IN NOVEMBER

(PARIS, Sept. 16.—) Enormous attention is attracted by the proposed visit of Georges Clemenceau, one-time Premier of France, to America. At present the venerable statesman is staying in his modest cottage at St. Vincent sur Jard, in Vendee. It is difficult to find this little, lost, humble dwelling by the sea and the welcome of M. Clemenceau to the visitor is uncertain. Nothing is more striking than the simplicity of the four rooms in the arid room inhabited by a man who can turn the world upon himself by the slightest word. His vigor is surprising; his voice is sonorous and jovial.

To a correspondent he exclaimed: "You come post haste from Paris to talk about a tour in America. If I say nothing, what will you be like?" "I will cut a poor figure," was the reply.

The unbending Clemenceau declared that it was urgent that he should talk to America and wanted to address himself personally to the people there in the early part of November. "The moment has come," he said, "it is time to tell the United States that they are mistaken, that we are neither militarist nor imperialist, that the French people merit the full confidence of the free citizens of America."

Kipling is also mistaken. He is a great writer, cruelly struck by war. There is no need for doctors to plead the French cause. I don't want a triumphal voyage. I want to make a useful trip.

M. Clemenceau says that he is ready to deliver four addresses, but protested against any idea of having a mission from anybody. He will accept no banquet and wishes to cut up receptions. What he will say he indicates as follows:

"I will recall an elementary truth that the end and object of war is peace. I will say that if the Allies remained in peace what they were during the war the world would not be struggling in the midst of so many miseries and difficulties. As for the Treaty of Versailles it is clear that it removed from Germany all pretense for a war of revenge. There is nothing imperialistic in it. But whatever I say will be said simply, because Americans love simplicity, and straightforwardness, and I will speak to them kindly, because Americans are our great friends."

The reappearance of M. Clemenceau after three years of silence, is not received with enthusiasm in certain quarters. A political purpose is attributed to him. His reputation was that of a breaker of cabinets. There are those who see in this emergency a massed attack on the Poincare Government. Eight months ago, Andre Tardieu, the chief colleague of M. Clemenceau, founded a newspaper which is highly critical of the ministry.

M. Poincare is accused, like his predecessors, of having spoiled the treaty in applying it. The other day Louis Klotz, another Clemenceau publicist, addressed M. Poincare and demanded explanations about the promise to consider a reduction of the German debt. It is known that in these circles the belief is held that the time is almost ripe to launch an attack on M. Poincare for not living up to the bold articles he wrote before he accepted power.

Is M. Clemenceau's visit to America part of a campaign which will show the injury done by the successors of the Tiger to French relations? Against this view that incidentally M. Clemenceau may have a political object, is the contention of the Journal des Debats, which declares that "he is too old to have personal ambitions and cannot join in any intrigue." His mission then would be inspired by the highest patriotic motives and undertaken purely in the interest of international unity as he conceives it.

BATH WAS FATAL.
LONDON, Sept. 16.—(United Press)—Emma Goldberg, 84, hadn't taken a bath for 15 years, neighbors claimed in the village of Little Dunmow, Essex. The local doctor ordered the old woman to bathe—Verdict—"Died in her bath."

GERMAN FIGHT FANS WELCOME BRITISH BOXERS

BERLIN, Sept. 16.—Ted (Kid) Lewis and Boy MacCormick, champions in their class in England, came to Berlin and showed the German boxers a thing or two about ring technique.

Their reception by German boxing fans was marvellous. The exhibitions which took place in the Bock Brewery, were attended by a packed house. After the exhibitions the German fans threw flowers into the ring and crowned the Englishmen with laurel wreaths.

The fighters were cheered until forced to make speeches in which they thanked the German sporting people for their cordiality. After several preliminary rounds mick, who weighed in at about 160 pounds toyed with Adolf Wiegert a young 140-pounder. The red-haired 23-year-old Irishman boxed Wiegert through three 3-minute rounds and showed marked superiority over anything the Germans had heretofore seen in the ring. One German paper, commenting on the exhibition declared "it was a good lesson for the German boxer."

The big exhibition of the evening was the appearance of Ted Lewis, approximately 140 pounds, against George Groves, a slight 122-pounder, and Curly Watson 137 pounds, in two-round goes with 14-ounce gloves.

The German fans marvelled at the manner in which Lewis handled both hands commencing on the similarity between his style of fighting and the style of American boxing. Lewis showed more bulldog rush fighting than the Germans had ever seen. Despite the fact that the affair was only an exhibition match, Lewis had Groves on Irishman in the first round and Watson was dizzy when his short fight was over.

Both fighters took turns as referees of other bouts. The success of the exhibition, the first of its kind to be held in Germany, will interest the championship class. Just now Germany is content to learn from the other fellows.

SUCCESS IN RAISING SUNKEN SHIP STIRS NEW SALVAGE HOPE

LONDON, Sept. 16.—The successful raising of a passenger steamship, the Per Brake, sunk in 120 feet of water in Lake Vaetern, Sweden, during a heavy gale in November, 1918, is reported from Stockholm. This operation, which has been followed with great interest throughout Sweden, is considered a most remarkable piece of salvage work and arouses hope that larger vessels which have gone down in greater depths may be recovered, since the apparatus used in this instance was of the most routine kind.

The Per Brake when about 400 yards off Port Haeften encountered one of the sudden and violent gales for which the lake is noted. She was soon overwhelmed by the waves, so that she capsized and foundered. Experts reported that there was a chance of salvaging the ship, which was therefore abandoned by the owners. Subsequently an attempt by a private company to bring her to the surface failed.

Local interests, however, formed a joint stock company, and with the assistance of divers began salvage operations in May of this year. By means of two vessels, from the capstans of which heavy wire hawsers were rigged, the steamer was raised sufficiently to enable her to be towed into shallow water, where she was grounded. She was then floated and pumped dry, after which she was towed away for repairs.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1922
THE TRAGEDY AT SMYRNA.

The enormity of the tragedy at Smyrna which has been enacted within the past week is momentarily overshadowed by a low-hanging dark cloud which has spread itself over Europe. The allied powers have been watching impotently the drift of Turkish aggression during the past 10 days. The astonishing defeat inflicted on the Greeks in Asia-Minor has injected into the Turkish nationalists new blood and lust and the Ottoman leaps into the European arena with his blood-drenched scimitar whetted for a Holy War.

Mustapha Kemal has been quick to recognize in the halting policy of France and Great Britain a weakness. Christians, notably the long-suffering Armenians have been put to the sword with growing abandon. The powers stood idly by with the utterance of severe structures and threats. Then came the boiling over of inflamed Turkish passion with the putting of the torch to that great Asiatic sea-port a city of 350,000 souls—and yet no step was taken to treat the Turks with the steel they so richly deserve.

The answer to this failure on the part of the major powers to step in and to control these terrible excesses is not hard to understand. With the two countries from which most might be expected unprepared to allocate the sympathies of their colonies for France and England to avowedly declare war on Turkey is to court a Mohammedan rearing and still worse to court the open hostility of Soviet Russia which grasps this opportunity to form an alliance with such a formidable group. Great Britain seems prepared to meet the issue once more with the laying down of life, but France, smarting under the recent affronts, it has experienced from its own ally and still dubious over its own security from Germany is unwilling to go on.

Even the killing of thousands of Christians spilled by the rabid Turk is insufficient to arouse the wrath of blood brothers to a point where action may be expected. The freedom of the Dardanelles is at stake this week with the Nationalists flushed with the victories of a strange fortune openly deriding the Allied Powers and recognizing the situation in which they find themselves. The situation is stunning. Turkey is virtually challenging Europe wracked with internal dissension—a scant three years after the world had dawned when Turkey was about to be ousted from Europe and reduced to such a stage of impotency that it would no longer have to be reckoned with in the conduct of national affairs.

ARE ALL PERSONS ALIKE IN THE EYES OF THE LAW—NO.
(The Danville Register)
All laws are intended to apply to all citizens alike without any privileged classes, but this does not seem to apply to the increased number of prohibition officers who are using their guns recklessly on public thoroughfares. On the 15th of this month, The Register carried a news item from Greensboro of a suit instituted by Mr. and Mrs. Vuncannon against R. J. Jennings, Federal Prohibition Agent, alleging illegal search accompanied by mistreatment at the hands of defendant on a public highway. A judgment for $2,000.00 in favor of the Vuncannons was given. Yet we have not heard of any State authority bringing any charges against said officer. If the defendant was guilty in the above civil action he certainly must have committed some violation of the Carolina laws. It seems the prohibition sleuths are immune from criminal proceedings, regardless of how reckless they are with firearms or whatever illegal means they use in attempting to stop cars.

Elsewhere on this page we are printing a news item from Staunton of the shooting episode of the Chief of Police Stumate of Waynesboro. Mr. Woods' car which contained his family was fired upon by the Chief of Police because he failed to stop at the officer's command. The chief knew that there was only one way to be saved from probably a long term in the penitentiary, for his reckless disregard for human life so he stated that he believed that the car contained liquor or else Mr. Woods would have stopped at his order to do so. Because a man refuses to obey an officer and stop, is this any reason to believe that the car is transporting liquor and put the owner and his entire family's lives in jeopardy? No man living would be excused with only a calling down by the city official for such a deed as this unless he be acting as a PROHIBITION SLEUTH. No evidence could be found to bear out the officers belief. Even if a quantity of liquor had been found in the car, does this give any human being living the right to try to massacre an entire family?

One of the Dry Leaders, B. W. Dodson, in replying to an editorial in The Register several days ago stated that the Hon. John R. Saunders, our Attorney General, would gladly discharge any officer proven to be negligent, indiscreet or unfit for his post, yet we have not heard of any action being taken against this officer. If it had been anyone else besides a Prohibition Sleuth, a warrant would have been immediately sworn out charging, "malicious shooting on a public highway with intent to kill", and it would have required a very large bond to release this man from prison while waiting for his trial. Attention is also called to the fact that in Mr. Dodson's statement he does not even insinuate that the officer would be prosecuted as any other citizen would, but that he would only be discharged from his post.

It does seem to us that it is time that the citizens of this United States of Ours should wake up and call a halt to the absolute disregard of our most sacred human rights that are being constantly ignored by the Dry enforcement officers. If we continue to sleep while the Prohibition Sleuths backed by well organized and militant power, continue their rapid strides, with utter disregard of all laws that interfere with them in their efforts to rid the country of the illegal flow of liquor, we might as well sleep FOREVER or then our lives may not be safe locked behind the doors of our own homes.

PLEASANT GAP Sept. 18—(Grapevine Wireless)—Fred Harper, mayor of Pleasant Gap, is also a Past Grand Exalted Ruler of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks and one of the best-known and most popular members of that great fraternal organization. He is a speaker of note and as a round-table story-teller he has no superior. Being a Southerner he has a keen appreciation of the "down home" colored folks and their quaint characteristics.

The following incident is related by Mr. Harper in the September number of "The Elks Magazine":
Last Winter a Northern tourist while spending a few days in Atlanta decided he would like to try a little of the local moonshine about which he had heard so much. With very little difficulty he secured a pint of the "white lightning" and returned to his room to sample it. One taste was enough. It was a peculiarly vicious concoction and he promptly resigned. He did not care to throw it away, so he presented it to an old darkey who had been driving him about the city in his taxi.

"What do you mean by just exactly right," he asked.
"Well, Suh," said the darkey "it was just exactly right 'cause if it had been any better you wouldn't have given it to me 'n' if it had been any worse I couldn't drink it."

THE LONE WOLF
by Louis Joseph Vance
Only International Magazine Company

GO ON HERE TODAY
"Was the secret of the most brilliant detective in the English Secret Service to be disclosed to the woman he loved? The man all Europe knew as THE LONE WOLF ANDER DUCHEMIN, and who had been sent to the south of France to avoid plots by revengeful Bolsheviks, was recovering from the effects of a bullet wound inflicted by a Paris Apache from a back street. DUCHEMIN had previously rescued the young American widow, EVELYN MONTALAIS, and her friends.
Duchemin's suspicions were aroused when the news came concerning Eve's jewels and veiled warnings about the "Lone Wolf" who was in the drawing room. His which sought refuge in the chateau from a storm. It consisted of WHITAKER MONK, his secretary, PHINUIT, the latter's brother, JULES, who acted as chauffeur, and the COUNT and COUNTESS DE LORNGES.
On the night when the chateau was asleep, the wounded Duchemin left his bedroom and went seeking the treasure in the drawing room. A candle, which he placed on the table, was suddenly blown out and then removed by an unseen hand.
GO ON WITH THE STORY
Duchemin straightened up sharply, and stood quite still, listening. No sound.
His vision spent itself fruitlessly against the blackness, which the closed window draperies rendered absolute but for those dull, sardonic eyes of dying embers.
In spite of himself he knew a moment when flesh crawled and the hair stood up on the scalp for Duchemin knew he was not alone; there was something else in the room with him, something nameless, stealthy, silent, sinister.
A hand extended above a foot encountered the back of an upholstered chair, which he identified by touch. Assuming the chair to be occupying its usual position, he need only continue in a line parallel with the line of its back to find the entrance hall in about six paces.
Within three he stopped dead, as if paralyzed by sudden instinctive perception of that other presence close by.
Whether he had drawn near to it, inch by inch, or whether it, sensing him about to make good his escape, had crept up on him, he could not say. He only knew that it was there, within arm's-length, waiting, tense, prepared, and somehow deadly in its animosity.
Digging the nails deep into the palms of his hands, until the pain relieved his nervous tension, he waited once more, one minute, two, three.
But nothing.
Then very slowly he lifted an arm, and swept it before him right and left. At one point of the arc, a trifle to his left, his fingertips brushed something. He thought he detected a stir in the darkness, a stifled sound, stepped forward quickly, clashing the air, and caught between his fingers a wisp of some material, like silk, sheer and glacial, a portion of some garment.
Simultaneously he heard a smothered cry, of anger or alarm, and the night seemed to split and be rent into fragments by a thousand shooting needles of colored flame.
Smitten brutally on the point of the jaw, his head jerked back, he reeled and fell against a chair, which went to the floor with a muffled crash.
CHAPTER X
A Woman's Faith
Duchemin woke up in his bed, glare of sunlight in his eyes. He groaned aloud and with both hands clutched temples that promised to split with pain that crashed between them, stroke upon stroke, like blows of a mighty hammer.
Also, his jaw was stiff, and developed a protesting ache whenever he opened his mouth.

Then Duchemin remembered... He got up hastily and spent several thrilling minutes under an icy shower and emerged feeling more on terms with himself and the world.
The valet-de-chambre brought with his tray the announcement that Madame de MONTALAIS presented her compliments and would be glad to see monsieur at his convenience in the grand salon. So Duchemin made short work of his dressing, his coffee and roll, and hurried down to the drawing room.
Her profound reverie disturbed by his approach, she rose quickly, advancing to meet Duchemin with both hands offered in sympathy.
"My dear friend! You are suffering—"
He met this with a smiling denial. "Not now; at first, yes; but since my bath and coffee, I'm as right as a trivet. But madame is not—"
The smile which she dismissed them lingered, delightful and enigmatic, as Eve recognized the stupefaction with which Duchemin moved to remonstrate with her.
"Madame!" he cried in a low voice of wonder and protest—"why did you do that? Why let them go without telling them—"
"Possibly this is my wish, monsieur," she gave a gesture of aloofness. "Perhaps," she continued, meeting his blank stare with eyes in which amusement gave place to a look almost apologetic yet utterly kind—"perhaps I have more faith in you..."
Duchemin bowed his head over hands so tightly knitted that the knuckles were white with strain.
"You would not have faith," he said in a low voice, "if you knew—"
She interrupted in a gentle voice: "Are you sure?"
"What I must tell you?"
"My friend," she said: "tell me nothing that would distress you."
"If you had told those detectives," he said at length, with a look of gloom, "you must have known very soon. They must have found me out without too much delay. And who in the world would ever believe anybody else guilty when they learned that Andre Duchemin, your guest for three weeks, was only an alias for Michael Lanyard, otherwise the 'Lone Wolf'?"
"But you are wrong, monsieur," she replied, without the long pause of surprise he had anticipated. "I should not have believed you guilty." Dumb with wonder, he showed her a haggard face. And she had for him, in the agony and the abasement of his soul, still quivering from the rack of emotion that alone could have extorted his confession—she had for him the half-smile, tender and compassionate, that it is given to most men to see but once in a lifetime on the lips and in the eyes of the woman beloved.
"Then you knew—"
"Since the night those strange people were here and tried to make you unhappy, then, and then, the end of the 'Lone Wolf,' I suspected, then; and when I came to know you better, I felt quite sure... I have faith in you."
She shook her head. "You mustn't ask me that."
At the end of a long moment he said in a broken voice: "Very well. I won't. Not yet awhile. But this great gift of faith in me—I can't accept that without trying to repay it."
"If you accept, my friend, you repay."
"No," said Michael Lanyard—"that's not enough. Your jewels must come back to you. If I go to the ends of the earth to find them. And—man's undying vanity would out—'if there's anyone living who can find them for you, it is I.'"

COTTON CO-OPS. MOVEMENT IS MORE POPULAR
DALLAS, Texas, Sept. 16.—More than two and one-half million bales of cotton have been signed into state marketing associations by 150,000 farmers in the south within the last two years, according to a review compiled by L. F. McKay, director of information of the National Cotton Growers plan change in the marketing system which will eliminate, they say, many of the evils in the present system of selling.
Four of the states, Oklahoma, Texas, Arizona and Mississippi, last year marketed their cotton successfully under the new plan. Mr. McKay said. "This year eight states have formed themselves into the American Cotton Growers Exchange. States in this cotton pool are Oklahoma, Texas, Arizona, Arkansas, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama. Mississippi, Tennessee and Louisiana short staple growers are now planning selling associations. Mississippi long staple growers have not yet entered the exchange.
"The entire south is for the cooperative marketing of cotton because of its many advantages over present methods. It is a modern system, will tend to increase the standard of living and will provide deposits because the farmer will receive more money for his cotton whether or not he is a member of the association. It also means better schools and better school terms."

Aerial Menace Shown By Attack On Agamemnon

PORTSMOUTH, Sept. 16.—The aerial menace to the navy was given a full dress rehearsal recently when the old battleship Agamemnon was attacked by four different types of airplanes. A total of 180 dummy bombs were thrown from the air. Out of 48 dropped from close quarters, or point blank range, there were only three misses. At the 8,000 foot range there were nine direct hits and 225 misses. Nine pound smoke bombs were used. If war bombs containing high explosive had been used the Agamemnon, experts say, would certainly have been very badly damaged if not actually sunk. The airplanes operated from a base of 30 miles away.

One of the wonders of the demonstration was the behavior of the Agamemnon herself. She was under wireless control, directed from a destroyer. Without a human being on board she twisted and turned at a speed varying from six to 15 knots. Her fires were stoked with oil fuel and she maneuvered throughout a long day as if she had a full crew aboard.

The attack at point blank range were very spectacular and exciting. Four snipers flying at 120 miles an hour dived at the Agamemnon one after another until they were about 150 feet above the sea, and dropped bombs in pairs. Each "sniper" swung round almost on its heel and was back again to drop two more. Each bomb on exploding emitted a cloud of white smoke so that in two minutes the Agamemnon was wrapped in smoke from end to end and looked as if she were on fire.

The attack gave a vivid impression of the danger that would beset a battleship that had no means of defense against attacks from the air.

The "snipers" were followed by six "camels"—machines of similar dimensions—that swooped down on the Agamemnon, and when at a height of 1,400 feet started peppering her with machine-gun fire.

According to experts, if the test did not prove that a battleship was entirely at the mercy of attacks from the air, it did show the necessity of providing an ample force of fighting and bombing machines to defend the fleet from such attacks.

During the experiments the deck of the light cruiser Canterbury, carrying foreign naval attaches, naval experts and newspaper men, became temporarily the floor of an animated debating society, says the Daily News.

There was one point on which everyone appeared to be agreed: that the development of the airplane would not make naval warfare cheaper by leading to the abolition of the battleship, but would make it more expensive by adding to its complexity. There was evidence of the necessity of having more airplanes for coast defense.

"All this means," said one enthusiast, "is that the poor old taxpayer will have to put his hands still deeper into his pockets."

That was the general view. The subject was covered by a naval officer who said:

"As far as the navy is concerned the development of the airplane is merely a repetition of the development of the submarine. In both cases there is quick development and then a halt. The battleship confronts another menace; steps will be taken to meet it. We doubt the thickness of the deck will be increased and personnel will be better protected from attack from above. No doubt, too, the airplane, like the submarine will score successes. An occasional battleship will be sunk. But to suggest that the airplane can make the battleship obsolete—I'm afraid the taxpayer can look for no relief in that direction."

MOTHER FINDS HER SON INSANE AT NAVY HOSPITAL

TAMPA, Fla., Sept. 16.—Mrs. Emma C. Cline of this city, after a search of more than three years for her son, Joseph Cline, who served with the American naval air forces in France during the world war, has found the youth, according to word received here by friends. He is in a hospital for the insane at Elgin, Ill. Joseph enlisted in 1917 and was sent to the naval air station at Pensacola for training. From Pensacola he went to France and his mother had letters from him regularly for a time. Then they stopped coming. A search of navy department records failed to show him in the casualty list and further investigation developed that as an ensign he had resigned in 1920.

Two years ago Mrs. Cline learned that he was employed as chauffeur by a family in Cleveland, Ohio, and she solicited the aid of the American Red Cross. Word came that he had left his position.

He next was located in the naval service at San Diego, Cal., but upon being interviewed by Red Cross officials denied he ever had been in Florida and said the woman in search of him apparently was an imposter. Finger prints established his identification and his actions led officials to believe him to be of unsound mind.

Mrs. Cline was advised recently that he was to be discharged from the navy at Chicago and she went to that city. She finally found her boy in the hospital at Elgin. Although insane, he recognized her.

PRESENT PLAN OF SHIPPERS FOR RATES NOW

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 16.—Ending his attack on the freight rate system proposed by the railroads for the southeast Harry T. Moore, secretary of the Atlanta Freight Bureau and witness before the Southern Class Association of the Interstate Commerce commission here today the presentation of the shippers' plan for the future rate structure of the southeastern states.

Mr. Moore endorsed the uniform mileage class rate scale as being the best solution to the freight rate mud-gate, which he said existed in this territory, but he admitted that the southern traffic league, the shippers' organization taking the lead in the fight against the carriers' proposals did not take a unanimous stand on the mileage system.

Presenting exhibits comparing shippers' and carriers' proposals and existing rates, the witness charged the railroads with inconsistency in that their proposed long haul rates exceed the rates that would obtain if they carried out to further distances the maximum mileage scale they applied in distances under 400 miles.

Mr. Moore will resume his testimony at Monday's session of the hearings.

VILLAGE BELLE WINS HER FIGHT

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—Greenwich Village, that Bohemian center regarded as a perpetual fountain of mirth, for a time was threatened with its little tragedy, but now the tale has taken a new turn and the happy ending is in sight.

A few weeks ago Sonia the Cigarette Girl, a stricken desperado, ill, heart disease, a strange form, the doctors said.

For weeks she lay in a hospital ward, pale and wan. And very lonely was Sonia, for she found that her village friends, the poets and painters who laughed with her and blew smoke rings with her in cellar and garret, had deserted her.

On the walls were none of the gay tapestries, the paintings and the sketches in which she delighted. The sounds which came to her were ominous sounds, lacking the music and laughter which to her had constituted life.

Sonia is only in her twenties. Youth rebels at grim hospital walls and white-clad doctors and nurses, with their stethoscopes and mysterious charts.

But now doctors say that Sonia has won her fight—that soon she will be discharged.

Everyone knows Sonia in the Village. In a smart and sandals she could be seen any day walking bareheaded through the alleys of the Latin Quarter, shaking her bobbed-head violently when engaged in argument over Belles Lettres or the theories of Freud.

Sonia—she has a last name but in the Village she is known only as Sonia—is a Bohemian. Thousands of out-of-towners who have visited the village have seen her slipping from table to table in the fantastic tea-rooms which the village boasts, calling the merry-makers into buying a package of her cigarettes.

Sonia is versatile. Now she would make a little money at one thing, at other times at another. Sometimes she would make nothing at all.

Once she went to Boston and there staged a Bohemian dance largely attended by Harvard undergraduates. Arrangements went a bit awry, the dance was not wholly a success, and the police reserves had to be called.

A few months ago she opened a little shop of her own in the village. To her tastes and fanciful fancies.

Then she was stricken.

Her acquaintances tried to find her family. They were all dead, she said. She smiled mysteriously whenever she was asked whence she had hailed.

She just appeared one day in the village. Tradition has it that her homeland was Russia.

"It isn't so much that I'm down and out," she said bravely. "It's that the Village folks don't come to see me."

"Yes, I know the Village is away up in Provincetown and Croton. But they might send me word or have dropped in to see me before they went."

Carter's Slogan Contest

Awards for good slogans and advertising verses. All these writers were asked to tell the cold hard truth about Carter's Mineral Springs water and this is what they say:

MRS. C. W. DODSON, 705 Main St. says: "Summer Winter, Spring and Fall, Carter's Water is Best of All."

MISS BERTHA JONES, Bedford City, Va., says: "Carter's Water Liquidates Human Ills."

MRS. ERNEST HEITZLER, 163 Broad St., says: "Carter's Water Makes You Smile."

MR. JOHN G. LEA, 238 Jefferson St., says: "Carter's Water Does the Work."

MRS. RICHARD P. MOSS, 705 Main St., says "Get Well and Stay Well With Carter's Spring Water."

MR. P. K. KENYON, Powell Ave., Says: "Carter's Spring Water Puts Spring in Your Heel."

MISS ELIZABETH TAYLOR, 733 Main St., says: "Mother, Father, Son and Daughter, to live long drink Carter's Water."

WALTER I. ANDERSON, 130 Holbrook Ave., says: "Carter's Water is Nature's Recommendation for Health."

MRS. N. J. WAUGH, 275 W. Main St., says: of Carter's Water: "A Drink A Day Keeps Disease Away."

MR. H. W. HESTER, of the Harris Clothing Co., 313 Main Street, a gentleman of wide experience says: "Drink Carter's Water and Life Will be Worth Living."

And then we received a scrap of yellow paper with the following lines written in what looks like a small boy's hand with no name or address, and he says:

"Old Folks Made Younger, Young Folks Made Stronger, By always drinking Carter's Water."

If anybody knows this youngster let me hear from him.

About One of the Ingredients of

CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

SIX CENTURIES OF USE

The principal medicinal plant ingredient, to which much of the therapeutic value of CARDUI is due, was first introduced into medicinal use by Arnoldus Villanovanus, about 1350 A. D., or nearly 600 years ago. Since then, many medical text books have mentioned its use, among others, the following:

Dr. P. A. Matthiolus, of Frankfort, in 1586, wrote: "The plant is greatly esteemed among all nations."

Dr. John Hill, of London, in 1751, wrote: "The great demand for it, on account of its medicinal virtues, occasions its being propagated in all the Gardens about London, where medicinal herbs are raised."

Dr. Johann Schroeder, of Nuremberg, in 1693, wrote: "The herb, when boiled in water or wine and taken, overcomes dizziness, is useful in severe debility, promotes appetite and brings on . . ."

Dr. Lobach, Member of the Physico-Medical Society, Wuerzburg, in a report to his society, in 1858, wrote about "the wonderful results which have made this remedy famous."

Dr. John M. Scudder, of Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1898, wrote: "It will be found valuable in cases of sudden suppression, due to colds . . . It promotes the appetite and gives energy to the digestive organs."

King's American Dispensatory published in Cincinnati, in 1909, says: "It acts well in suppression from colds."

Potter's Cyclopaedia of Botanical Drugs, London, 1911, says: "It acts well in . . . derangements due to colds, etc."

The above quotations from scientific medical writers, show the high opinion held by them as to just one of the ingredients of Cardui, the woman's tonic.

First introduced into common use in this country as a proprietary medicine nearly half a century ago, CARDUI has attained the position of a leading remedy in female ailments and is indicated in many cases of female trouble and for such symptoms as pains, cramps, spasms and other signs of derangement in cases of this kind, when not due to constitutional deformity or that do not require surgical treatment.

Its general action on the system is that of a mild tonic and it is, therefore, also indicated for a run-down condition in general, to assist in promoting appetite, stimulating digestion and toning up the system.

Most druggists carry Cardui in stock, in $1.00 bottles, with full directions for use printed on the label; and every woman who suffers from female ailments, or requires the aid of a good, general, systemic tonic, should try this well-known remedy.

Write for Book or Circular

A Book, in simple language, giving full particulars of the uses of Cardui, with instructions on diet, habits, and other health hints, will be sent to any woman on request.

A Special Circular, for physicians only, giving the formula and describing its ingredients, therapeutic effects and clinical results, will be sent to any physician writing us on his printed letterhead or prescription blank.

MOONEY SEES NEW HOPE FOR FREEDOM

(By JACK JUNGMEYER.)
S. 18.—Hope springs anew, from recent political events in California, for Thomas J. Mooney, serving life sentence for the San Francisco preparedness day bomb outrage in 1916.
The primaries decided that California is to have a new governor. Perhaps a new alignment of forces. From that Mooney expects a new deal—Mooney, who always charged that he was "framed" and in whose case workers of many nations took an active interest.
I have just talked with him in the penitentiary here.
"No matter what's in store," he said "my spirit is not tamed."
In Prison Six Years
"I have been here six years. I give them no trouble. They don't try to break a man's neck here. One can get along."
"The sheer lust for liberty never got me. I work now as warehouse man and donkey engineer, outside the inner walls. I have always worked hard, and like it."
"Odd hours I put in cultivating my little prison garden—raising melons, tomatoes, beans—to supplement the monotonous fare."
"My health is excellent. I weigh 173. I exercise regularly. A man can get along, physically and mentally, if he has something to do to do."
"Once I was within a few days of the gallows, before my reprieve. But that didn't faze me. My only intense suffering came when the jury trying my wife were out deliberating the verdict.

TOM MOONEY

"All's Well," His Omen
"On the first night in the condemned cells, when things looked blackest, I awakened at dawn as the guards on the wall droned, 'Four o'clock—and all's well.' I accepted that as a sort of omen. All will yet be well, in due time. Until then, I have the patience to wait."

Twice a month, Rena Mooney, his wife, visits Tom at San Quentin. She was tried and acquitted on the same charge that sent her husband, labor organizer, here for life.

FISHED UP OLD PISTOL

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., Sept. 16.—(United Press.)—While fishing in the Saranac river, Antonio Lemere hooked and landed an ancient firearm that looks as if it might have been the last word in pistols during the French and Indian war.
The old death spreader has three barrels and was fired by percussion caps. It was evidently loaded in the same manner as the old-time cannon were. While slow in getting into action it must have packed an awful wallop when it did let go.

HUMANIZING HOTELS! WOMAN IS DOING IT AND MAKING FORTUNE

MRS. LOIS PIERCE HUGHES.

(By MARIAN HALE.)

A SMALL hotel exclusively for women, operated within one of New York's largest and busiest ones, is the new thriving business which was once only a dream of Mrs. Lois Pierce Hughes.

Some years ago it occurred to her that many women from all parts of the world came to New York annually without friends or relatives and that Broadway or Fifth Avenue was about as far as they ever got, just because there was no interested person to tell them what to do or where to go.

Something should be done, she figured. So she went to the proprietor of a hotel and told him so. "We don't care to cater to women," he told her. "They're too fussy—always wanting something. They get into difficulties with the bell-boys and drive the clerks wild with their questions."

Which led Mrs. Hughes to reply: "That shows they want something you don't give them. They require a different type of service."

Convinced Hotel Man
Mrs. Hughes is a convincing talker. She soon convinced the proprietor to her idea. So he gave over to her a floor of 75 rooms in his new building and told her to go ahead and see what she could do.

In a short time she had established a shopping service consisting of a corps of young women who knew all the New York shops and just where to buy what.

She assembled a force of chaperones who would meet young girls at the train and look after them as carefully as their mothers would while in the city, besides directing them to the places where the real New Yorkers instead of the tourists go.

A playroom for children, with a capable nurse in charge, was another innovation that immediately was welcomed and taken advantage of by mothers. A beauty shop and a library and some other parlors were soon added because they seemed necessary.

Her Own Home There
But more than this, she moved her own belongings to the sixth floor and made her home there—and she regards the women on the floor as her guests.

"After all, it's the home they want when they are away," she explained. "Women want to talk to another woman—to tell her their troubles and their plans."

"When I was a child, I used to travel with me father and often we stayed at a hotel. There was never any thing for me to do all day but to talk to the chambermaid or bother the clerk."

"The dearth of it all must have sunk deep into my subconscious mind, for when I found it necessary to leave my home and go into business my first thought was to do something to humanize a hotel."

"I decided not to give up my home life, but merely to transfer it to another place, where possibly it might be more far-reaching."

"I do a great deal of work for men—men who are stopping on other floors, but who want to take presents to their wives or to get information for them."

"I advise women about every thing from their love affairs to their baggage transportation. I've never found them fussy or ungrateful in any way. And the men who were skeptical about my undertaking are now my most enthusiastic backers."

Virginia Censors Have Not Banned Single Film Yet

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 17.—During the month of August, the Virginia State Board of Censors was inclined to view with leniency the failure of certain motion picture exhibitors to display the State approval seal as required by law. So great was the number of application for permits and licenses that the office of the Board was almost swamped, and great difficulty was experienced in keeping pace with the heavy volume of business. Conditions have changed, however, and the time has come when failure to observe the provisions of the new statute will result in prosecution of those who offend.

The law provides that it "shall be unlawful to exhibit or to sell, lease or lend for exhibition at any place of amusement for pay or in connection with any business" any motion picture film or reel for which no permit or license has been issued. And it further provides that such film or reel shall contain for exhibition upon the screen "identification matter in the substance, style and length which the Board shall prescribe. This identification matter comes immediately after the title of the picture. Besides carrying the State approval seal and the serial number of the picture, it contains either the words "Permit issued by the Virginia State Board of Censors" or "Licensed by the Virginia Board of Censors."

In no case should the State approval seal be detached from the picture by exhibitors. In order to save themselves from embarrassing explanations or more probably prosecution all theatre managers should carefully examine their films before displaying them. To make assurance doubly sure, they should decline to take from any exhibitor, distributor or producer any picture for which a permit or license has not been procured.

The permits are issued for pictures used in Virginia before August 1st, the date when the new law became effective; the licenses for new pictures of the season.

tures never before exhibited in this Commonwealth. The old, or "used" films were not examined by the Board but every picture released since August 1st and offered for exhibition in this State has been screened at headquarters in Richmond.

The three censors, Evan R. Chesterman, Mrs. Emma Speed Sampson and R. L. Monroe, anticipated the rush of business by beginning work long before the new law became effective. They actually began examining films the latter part of July. Since then they have been nearly one hundred and fifty miles of motion pictures. And it is said by wise ones that their work has hardly begun!

Up to this date nearly 4,000 permits have been issued for the continued exhibition of old or "used" films while 137 new subjects have been screened.

In order to familiarize themselves thoroughly with their work, the three censors thus far have sat during the screening of practically all the new pictures, though it will be impracticable for them to do this latter when the volume of business increases. The examinations usually are from 9 in the morning until 5 in the afternoon with but an hour's interval for lunch.

SALLY'S ALLY IS AN EASY WINNER

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—With consummate ease, Sally's Ally, ridden by A. Johnson in the fifth of William Sharp's films, today won the thirteenth running of the Rich Filly, a six furlong sprint for two year olds, and established a new record of 1:11 for the race at its present distance. The Racehorse club, however, with Sandy in the saddle, was second, three lengths back, and driven to her limit to withstand the running of Wildness, of the E. Wilson colors, ridden by Enos. Wildness, by closing fast, finished two lengths ahead of Cyclops.
